Isaac River Update

- Letter received from the Department of Climate Change, Energy, the Environment and Water proposing to approve the construction and operation of the new Isaac River Coal Mine (Proposed Action).
- The proposed mine is located 28 kilometres to the east of Moranbah in the Bowen Basin in Central Queensland.
- Two existing mines, BMA's Daunia, and Peabody Energy's Moorvale South mines, operate adjacent to the proposed mine location.
- The proposed environmental conditions attached to the Proposed Action, have been accepted in full by Bowen Coking Coal

Bowen Coking Coal Ltd's (ASX:BCB) is pleased to announce that the Department of Climate Change, Energy, the Environment and Water has advised the Company that they intend to provide approval for the Proposed Action, which will enable a Mining Lease (ML) to be granted upon finalization of land access agreements for the Isaac River project.

The Isaac River Coal Mine once operational will produce high quality, high yielding metallurgical coal. From a standing start a year ago Bowen Coking Coal's operations now employ over 700 in regional Queensland. Since June last year the Company has mined over 1.3 million tonnes of run of mine (ROM) coal from two new mines, and have a third pit underway. With the imminent approval of Isaac River Mine, we are in a good position to meet our vision of an annualized ROM production target of 5 million ROM tonnes by 2024.

Nick Jorss, BCB Executive Chairman said, "As the Bowen Basin's newest independent coal producer, we're here to meet the growing demand for energy and steelmaking coal. We are confident that world steel and energy demand will continue its rapid growth, driven by on-going industrialization in the developing world, and the drive for decarbonisation in the developed world."
